

BOSTON Herald

ENTERTAINMENT

By OLIVIA VANNI | Boston Herald
June 12, 2019 at 10:29 p.m.

As Showtime gears up for its premiere of “City on a Hill,” viewers should be on the lookout for one Massachusetts man who’ll be making an appearance. Brandon Tabassi, an actor who also happens to head up a local real estate company, will be featured in the new series, brought to us by Chuck McLean, Ben Affleck and Matt Damon. Tabassi, who’s also a former aide to both ex-Sen. John Kerry and the late Sen. Ted Kennedy, will be playing the character of Joe Nazzarin and is slated to grace the small screen in a few episodes of the show’s debut season, which will be kicking off on June 16. And for folks keeping tabs, this isn’t the first time the 30-year-old Massachusetts native has been involved in an Affleck project. Previously, he also had a part in the Cambridge-raised director’s Academy Award-winning film “ARGO”.

